DETAILED ACTION
Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 1-19, and 34-44, drawn to ribonuclease with specific amino acids at specified position.

Group II, claim(s) 20-30, drawn to conservative variants of SEQ ID NO 14.

Group III, claim(s) 31-33, drawn to protein purification method.

The inventions listed as Groups I-III do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: The special technical feature of group I is a ribonuclease with amino acids at specified positions, and the conservative variants of SEQ ID NO:14 do not require the same amino acids at the positions specified in group I, and the purification method in group III does not require any special technical feature of group I RNase.

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows: each SEQ ID NO in claims 22, 34, and 37-39.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner: The different ribonuclease molecules claimed in claims 1-12, 15-21, 31-44 and examples of the exact sequences of the ribonuclease molecules listed in claims 22, 34, and 37-39 are structurally different proteins as evidenced by different amino acid sequences represented by different SEQ ID numbers.

The following claim(s) are generic: claims 1-12, 15-21, 31-44.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: each different ribonucleases listed in claims 22, 34, and 37-39 are structurally different. Wang, J. et al. 2000 J. Biol. Chem. 275 (1): 507-513 provide evidence that even a single amino acid change converts a potent nuclease into a protein without any nuclease activity (see Fig. 3, 4, and 5) and the single amino acid change also converts the in vivo function of the protein in an unpredictable way (see Table 1).

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
